

City & Guilds 2391-52 Inspection & testing

This C&G 2391-52 course is aimed at practicing electricians who wish to gain qualifications in periodic inspection and testing as well as initial verification of new systems. For some time now the industry has been crying out for a simpler more effective qualification to cover inspection and testing. Finally it is here!

An advanced inspection and testing course. Highly regarded in industry and essential if you want to provide periodic inspection and testing services including the new landlord inspections required by law from the 1st July 2020.

Instructions

You must be over 18 and be up to date with industry requirements. This course is intended to be taught to experienced electrical installers who have previous training and experience of inspection and testing. Essentially you should be working in the electrical industry and involved with the inspection and testing process before taking this advanced course. It is also useful for you to have an understanding of 3 phase systems.

If you have limited experience, you may wish to consider taking the Level 2 Fundamental Inspection and Testing qualification 2392. This course is designed to be taught for those who already know the fundamentals of inspection and testing but need to progress their skills. It is essential you have a good up to date understanding of BS 7671: IET Wiring Regs and up to date 18th edition course is recommended.

NOTE

There is no practical training, as such we strongly recommend you have 6 months testing experience before taking this course:

If you have no previous training inspection and testing you should take our C&G 2392 Course.
